

I DON'T LOVE MY WIFE ANYMORE

Dear Libby

I am 36 years old, have been married for 12 years and have three young children. The problem is that I don't love my wife anymore. I am no longer attracted to her at all. I am very fond of her, but is that enough? Financially I cannot afford to leave her, and I can't imagine that she would have much of a life on her own. Should I be true to myself or honour my responsibilities?

Pretend that you are an 'Agony Aunt'. These are some of the letters that have been sent to you. What advice will you give...remember you must give your advice based on CATHOLIC teachings!!!

GOOD LUCK!!!

I think I'm gay, I need help?

Ok well I am a 17 year old male. I have only had a few girlfriends. I've never done anything though. I haven't had a girlfriend in years. But there are lots of guys I find really attractive. My family would dis-own me if they ever found out the way I am. So I could never have a boyfriend. So many people expect it though, and I've been asked "are you gay?" and I always say no. I just don't know what to do anymore. I would love to be in a happy relationship. What should I do???

SHOULD I MARRY HIM?

My boyfriend and I want to get married. He is Roman Catholic and I am Anglican. Neither of our parents are happy about our relationship. They both think we should reconsider being together, let alone getting married. My parents say mixed marriages are not easy and we will face many difficulties. I really love him and can't imagine my without him. Does God really care if I am not Roman Catholic? Does it really make a difference? Please help us.

Should I wait?

I am 16 years old, and have been going out with my boyfriend for 3 months. I really like him. My friend has been talking to me about 'proving' my love for my boyfriend by having sex with him. We are happy just spending time together. I know my parents would get really mad if they thought we were doing stuff.

I don't think I am ready for that but I don't want my friends to take the mickey out of me either.

Should I wait or should I just do it to stop my friends going on about it?

What do you think I should do?
